Dead Man's Land

George Manville Fenn : Dead Man's Land before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Dead Man's Land:

Mark jumped up. You there, father! I did not hear you come in. Doctor Robertson, tutor, half rose from his seat by the glowing library fire. No, my boy, and I did not hear you come in. Why, uncle, you have been sitting there listening! cried Dean. To be sure I have. How could I help it, sir? I came in tired, and thought I would have a nap in my own chair till it was time to change for dinner, and you woke me up out of a pleasant dream which somehow shaped itself into climbing with an ice axe and nearly losing it. It was some time before I could make out whether I was really awake or dreaming still, and I lay listening and getting more and more interested in what the doctor described to you two stupid boys.
