Desert Healer

E. M. Hull : Desert Healer before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Desert Healer:

makes a good palate cleanser between meatier fare. In my book, there are three black and white screenplay plates, but don't get excited. Hollywood being what it is, none of the scenes depicted in the screenshots actually occurred in the book. Ha! Anyway, the storyline. A Rory Frost-type character (M.M. Kaye's Trade Wind) hides himself in the Algerian desert after his faithless wife leaves him and his child dies. He basically "goes native" but not having lost his love for country, he acts as mediator between governments and Arabian tribes. Officially, however he is a desert doctor. Having been burned in love, he hates women and no female is allowed near his dwellings. But one night, on galloping past a deserted ruin, he hears a woman screaming for help in English. He rescues the damsel who is near to being ravished and/or killed by a villainous Arab and he takes her to her home. As it turns out, the girl is married to a horrible brute of a man not much better than her attacker. But married she stays until...unless...Can treachery, sandstorms, past heartache and hate thwart two destined to love? CONTENT: Thematic elements: domestic abuse, lust MY RATING: Mild PG If you decide to read this I hope you can avoid the earworms that plagued me. "Midnight at the oasis" and "Sheik of Araby"
